FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Philadelphia, Pa., December 15, 2005 – The one thing every student needs in 2006 is an internship; a resume building, personality strengthening, and career projecting internship. After a sold-out inaugural year, Julian Krinsky Camps & Programs is excited to host Career Builders: Summer Internships in Philadelphia program again in 2006. High school seniors integrate hands-on internships, living at the University of Pennsylvania, and evening trips and seminars into an invaluable summer experience.

“Career Builders: Summer Internships in Philadelphia gives students a leading and competitive edge while they are still in high school,” said Julian Krinsky. “We believe each student deserves the opportunity to ‘try on’ a career and see if it ‘fits’ before entering college and choosing a major.”

The summer internship program gives students the opportunity to explore work in a chosen field as well as life on an Ivy League campus in a major city. Based on academic performance and references, students are chosen by dynamic professionals and placed in Philadelphia businesses along side a practicing professional.

Last summer interns chose from a wide variety of businesses. They were placed with companies such as Deutsche Bank, Republic First Bank, Hilton, Boyd’s, International Marketing Group (IMG), Camden’s Minor League Baseball team, the Philadelphia Soul Arena Football team, and Philadelphia-based newspapers, law firms, doctors’ offices, restaurants, concert venues, art galleries and more.
