FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

King of Prussia, Pa., January 26, 2006 – Julian Krinsky Camps & Programs, an innovator in summer programming, introduces the Model United Nations Summer Program at the University of Pennsylvania. High school students gain a unique perspective on international affairs through workshops, guest speakers and UN simulations.

The Model UN Summer Program is the perfect opportunity for seasoned Model UN participants or novices interested in the practical side of international relations. Students serve the role of world leaders and debate the most urgent issues facing our world today. High school students at the Model United Nations Summer Program work with participants from all over the world learning to achieve solutions through consensus and compromise.

This academic program has an interdisciplinary approach combining international politics, history, economics and specific area studies. Students gain experience and knowledge about the political history, voting patterns, leadership positions and alliance to the countries they represent. The session culminates with a Model UN simulation with fellow Model UN delegates representing participating countries.

While living at the University of Pennsylvania, students explore Philadelphia through planned activities each evening. On weekends, students visit tri-state area attractions as well as the opportunity to visit the United Nations in New York City and Embassy Row in Washington, D.C.
