EXPERIENCE THE EXCITEMENT OF HANDS-ON FILM PRODUCTION

If you have a passion for film and want to break into the industry, this is the summer program for you — the chance to work and learn with WHYY professionals.

The film academy features classroom instruction, hands-on workshops and field experience. You'll learn how to operate a camera, light a scene and edit video and sound, while discovering how all aspects of filmmaking are interconnected. By the end of the session, you'll write, direct, produce and edit your own short film, an impressive addition to your resumé or future film-school application.

LEARN FROM INDUSTRY PROFESSIONALS

The Film Production Academy is taught by accomplished members of WHYY's Learning Lab staff. All instructors have extensive media production experience and are skilled at teaching young people to express themselves through digital video. Drawing on their experiences as independent filmmakers and broadcast professionals, the instructors serve as "executive producers," guiding students in the discovery of their abilities as directors, producers and cinematographers.

WHYY is the region's premier public broadcaster, reaching more than 1.2 million households in the greater Philadelphia area. The station has been a resource for students of all ages for over 50 years and is known nationally as the producer of NPR's "Fresh Air" with Terry Gross, and as the primary outlet for PBS programming such as "Sesame Street," "Nova," and "The NewsHour with Jim Lehrer."

FILM ON LOCATION IN PHILADELPHIA Known as both the Cradle of Liberty and the City of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia has been a center of culture, education and business since its earliest days. Today, a leader in financial services, healthcare, education and more, Philadelphia is bursting with sights and sounds just waiting to be filmed.

Students will enjoy living at the University of Pennsylvania located in University City, a neighborhood across the Schuylkill River and just west of Center City. Drexel University, the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, and the Avenue of Technology are also in University City — filling it with the vibrant energy of people working, learning and growing.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS AND OFF-CAMPUS TRIPS

Every night there's something different on the schedule. Whether students stay on campus or visit Philadelphia attractions and historic sites, there are planned activities to interest everyone. On weekends, students choose from trips to New York City, Ocean City, N.J., Six Flags and other regional attractions.

“Professional, organized, flexible, well-run, full of energy are just a few words to describe Julian Krinsky camps.”
